under his care, on the flat of February in the present veer.

I found at my entrance upon my duties a night school in operation. There were light teachers amployed, who were pidd fifty cents each night for their services, and taught each three nights a west with the exception of one teacher who taught every night. There was some indication of a want of central power in the management of the school, the result of this defect was to render the achool itse efficient in its operation than was desirable. I attended every night in person, addressed the scholars and teachers several times, introduced singing occasionally as a pleasant recess, and had the pleasure of feeling, before the school was dismissed for the season, that it was pervaled by an excellent tone and spirit, and full of Hio and interest.

for the season, that it was pervaded by an excellent tone and spirit, and full of He and interest.

The average attendance some up to sixty cash night, averaging from forty to seventy-dive,—the average of boys was containty higher than that of girls. The set if was divided into two testines and taking thereas nights one night was devoted to small boys and women, and the other to be a set of the set of th school. The school was closed at the request of the Trustees on the 19th of March. There was a full attendance to the dust. Parely 16 give employment to one of the teachers, and also to help a number of boys who were anxious for more schooling, I gave the school-room for a school to be under the instruction of this teacher, paying also cide dollar and a fall a week towards hiring an assistant teacher. The scholars at this school numbered from 16 to 25, and the school was kept open about six weeks.

I found a day school taught by a lady, to whom the school room was given, with fire and other conveniences; but she was guid for her services out of other funds than those of this Association. The sewing school, under the Pare of the ladies, was also in ascossful operation, with a good attendance, and has now been closed for the summer. The sewing school, our accommodations for the scholars are not sufficiently ample. The average of attendance upon the Sunday School is about 99 scholars, and we have every prospect of a large increase. But the most gradifying feature about our Yunday School is the increase detendiness and good conduct of our children. Many at first ware the most regged and for ion-children, but they have exhibited a growing attention to cleanliness in person and dress, a desire te appear well, and an interest in the school, which has given us the greatest pleasure. Permit me to note in this connection my pleasure at the careful and kind attention of our teachers, who, though many things. the assistance of France, they said as low-left them be wise enough to take advantage of the common the friend, they would not deserve to be free. Loud cheers. When the fate of nations is trembling in the scale, we to the man who, loving himself better than his fatherland, would allow himself better than his fatherland more than myself—more than anything on earth; and, inspired by this love, I ask one boon—only one boon—from England, and that is; that she should not support Austria. Great cheering. The only boon I sak is stries neutrality; and this, loo, I should no ask if I were not certain in my conscience that England's inserference in the war would bring incalculable columity on this your free and happy country, without any possible present profit we future compensation. Hear, bear, I sway and gladly profess to owe, eternal grattude to England, is should feel it much like a misfortune befalling my own native land should England in considerately resh into a calamilious course by coupling her own fate to that of the House of Austria. [Hear.] The English nation has mighty destinies in her hands. Please to bear well in mind this, that no war can be thought to have assumed European proportions, unless Germany and Russia become parties to it. Now, my lord, I am of opinion that, though the German will not if yinto the war to the researce of Austria, nules Prussia takes the lead—thear, hear)—thus abjuring the policy of Frederick the Great, when his proint of Russia would be likely to take in such a research of Prussia would be likely to take in such a research of Prussia would be likely to take in such a research of Prussia would be likely to take in such a research of Prussia would be likely to take in such a research of the such and the such as a such as a such as a such as a s

Thus it evidently depends on the resolution of England whether or not the war is to assume general European proportions; because if Prussia, from reliance you England's support, plunges into the war on the side of Austria, it is more than reasonable to anticipate that France, in that case, will be supported by Russia. (Hear, hasr.) Let therefore, her Majesty's Government well ponder over the consequences of a rash, inconsiderate siep, and let them well weigh the immense responsibility of their position. The course which the national interests of England recommend is very clear. Keep yournelves sut of harm; develop your own freedom; advance your prosperity; go on steadily on the read of progress, to your own advantage as well as to had of humanity and of civilization; and allow me to express a hope that if, under the merceful dispension for frontience, a chase of national emacipation should arise from the present compile cations for any of the nationalities whom Austria holds in boundage, the good wishes and hearty prayers of, this free, generous wation will not be with the oppressor, but will be with the oppressor with her approbation, and in encouraging it by her sympathy. The letters from Genea speak of the arrival in that town of several Hungarian generals and colonels, among them the celebrated Klapka, and other chiefs of the insurrection of 1848. In the present position of affairs, the union of these personages round Prince Napoleon has created a lively sensation. It is a curious commentary on the remarkable phrase which occurred in the proclamation of the Prince, "Our external esemies." eured in the proclamation of the Prince, "Our eternal enemies."

OANIMALMI AND HIS MEN.

Count Ala Ponzone, a rich nobleman from Cremona, has sent from Paris a baticry of eight guns, three horses and 5,000 france, to be given as a patriotic present to the corps of Garibaldi. This brave general is still the idol of Tailains and the terror of Croats. He has a good number of French, Svias and even English volunteers among the men under his command. He leads his battalions to the attack, and is always to be found in he thick of the fire. Your readers will retrember the accounts of him when he was at Rotes. He was then diad in a most picturesque though eccentric continue—half Syanish and half Italian of the middle ages. The meant has been continued to the present day has assumed the elegant uniform of a Piedmostesse gaseral. His men are dressed with a green tunic, with white trimming over the shoulders, the officers of always. The corps of tinides wear a gray lacket with black trimming on the hessar fashios, large trousers of the same color, a sabre and a Coli's revolver. They are always absend on their good chargers, and are much feared by Austrian sharp-shooters and Crost maranders.

The following is from a letter in the Bieder.

Ldo not know if you have read in some forces foormats the strange exaggerations on the easily that the little army corps is the refage of persons more or less compromised: they have been represented as so many. "visiers" or "lanknechts," soldiers of the wallet and cord, abe despins all discipline, and are only fit to make a beld struken enterprise by night. Not aword of its true. There is not a regimment in Europe where discipline is more severely carried on them in the companies of volunteers. Girabaldi shoows the men, and white the personally know those who come and offer their servises to him, he does not accept then without good references. This is not a regiment to be soldiers. They have absonded very thing they, the inheritors of great names and larger formass of reservitude, the pl rnal enemies."

AUSTRIAN AND FERNOR CANNOR.—According to the latest accounts from the seat of war, vi France, the rifled cannon of the French arm will play haroe with the Austrian army, at distance so great that the Austrian cannon armable to return the firs. One accounts says the French cannon knocked over the Austrian work and killed their men at a distance of 3,000 meters while another says the distance was 7,000 metres. A French metre is 3.25 feet reduced to the standard of the United States.

The following reasons have been assigned in favor of this book of which sevent editions have been soid:

1. It is the best possible rentate over written on the ispal relation of men to each other in Business, and gives lim who maneres the contents the same caparior advantages in dealing which a charp havyer has over our taking angue in dealing which a charp havyer has over our taking in the property of the prop dealing which a deary lawyer has one of law.

2. It shows us how to guard against tricks and framing avoid numerous missians, and posts us in a hundred important matters which it is extremely dangerous not to know. "Millions of diskins have been expended in the awell by due necessions in hearing what is contained in this book.

3. Its organical arts, practical and timepressionably may and he wiso theorem them in his subsect transmissions associated by another them." Vol. royal 12mo., 408 pp. Price: h (Law), $1.50. 2'.0) OH HOME ONL The Clacimat Commercial of Satur morning contains as ill patient deficial, cle, advising the citizens of that city to sta home. The article was prompted by rathe sharp criticism on the Chomanati excursion, a correspondent published in the Press.

Tassora. The officer of the Commercial cognition as far from the mark articles. organis as far from the mark as was our respondent. The best of feeling prevails the part of our citizens towards the people Cincinnati and they are making extensive parations to give them a cordial veloce Even let the Commercial man come right also and we will do the best we can to send h home in a better humor. Again we are the citizens of Cincinnati of a cordial vector.

In the precedings of the Council, publish in this day's paper, will be noticed a brief to pertinent message from the Mayor recommending the equaling of a proper number fountains for the use of thirsty way farent our streets. The suggestion is a capital one and we hank the Mayor for bringing it to the notice of the Alderma. They, we take it will not hesitate to acc thou it, and easy the recommendation into effect. A dozen prorecompondation into affect A dozen goo and sufferent passess argo it, but the last an most important of all is this: The fournal by affording a supply of pure and cool water to whomsever will drink, will discourage if frequenting of the numberlies whisky sho and saloons that now win has to indulgence in less healthful fluids. By all means, let u have the fountains!

We distrust the accuracy of the rese-colored accounts which reach us by telegraph from Pike's Pail, but a we have doubted the conrectness of the reports invouted and put in circulation by the scared emigrants who come galloping back from their fruitless visit to the half-way ficuse between the Missouri and the newly-tomal placers. All are probably care gerations—in the one case born of supplier, and in the other the result of fear. The truth will be known by and by; then, if there is gold in sufficient quantities to remunerate the gold in sufficient quantities to remunerate the first sunsuccessful, then will be the very best fine for staying at home. We have never believed and do not now belleve, that she gold started told of my first Piak country as all have but after the hit disastrous rush to the plains omigrants assuing our depond for strongth of any new and, succindenced "amounts would be guilty of cash injustice to thems."
